Various Groups Entertain With Dance on Friday Evening

High school juniors and seniors journeyed out familiar Main street Friday evening to the High school to their dance being given in honor of the Robert football squad.

Of course the Barlow, favorite dance spot of the older crowd was not lone some for the evening. Reserving the ballroom for the night were the Girl Cotillion club members and their guests.

Two hundred people were there to hear an orchestra which was quite new to Hope dancers. For the evening the club secured the Henderson college orchestra from Arkadelphia.

At intermission favorite conversation spots were the alcoves arranged in the main dining room of the hotel and the hospitable lobby.

Another event of Friday was the party for the members of the Emanon club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, South Main street. Dinner was served the guests at 7 o'clock, and spirited games of contract were played during the evening.

Epworth League Members Have Treasure Hunt Friday

The monthly social meeting of the Epworth League of the First Methodist church was given in the recreational rooms of the church Friday evening with the leaders, Mrs. M. M. McClaughan and Linus Walker, and their assistants, Misses Marjory O'Neal and Jane Dadds, in charge of arrangements.

Following a lengthy treasure hunt sandwiches and "cokes" were served the following members and their guests: Dorothy O'Neal, Sophia Williams, Katherine Rising, Eva Jean Milam, Alice Lorraine Heard, Maude McFadden, Jessie Clarice Brown, Betty Ann Benson, Betty Jane Allen, Hazel Spillers, Paul Williams, Bob Elmore, Billy Duckett, Ralph Sanders, Harold Stephenson, C. R. Gordon, H. O. Kyler, Jr., William Barrett, Buddy Franklin, Jimmy Walters, Forest Walker, Bobby Franklin, and Elsworth Bailey.

Mary Dale Hollis Weds

L. J. Bressler

At 6 o'clock Friday evening in the parsonage of the First Baptist church of La Salle, Ill., Miss Mary Dale Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Hollis, of Patmos, Ark., and L. James Bressler, of Menomonee, Wis., were united in marriage by the pastor of the church, Rev. Robert Cook.

Miss Hollis' only attendant was her cousin, Mrs. E. B. Corbin, La Salle, and Robert Formoe, of Fort Madison, Ia., served as the bride-groom's best man.

For her wedding the bride chose a street-length dress of black crepe and white satin with a black velvet jacket and white satin with a black velvet jacket and black accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of white rose buds.

Mrs. Corbin wore a black velvet dress with black and red accessories and a shoulder corsage of red carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony, supper was served to the wedding party at Starved Rock Lodge.

Mrs. Bressler is a graduate of Patmos high school, of Patmos, Ark., and since September has been in nursing training at St. Mary's School of Nursing, La Salle.

Mr. Bressler is a graduate of the Stout Institute and is now an industrial arts teacher at La Salle-Peru Township high school.

Other guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Peterson, E. B. Corbin, La Salle, and Miss Luella Brenner, Menomonee, Wis.

Personal Mention

Miss Jane McGraw of Nashville is the week-end guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Della McClanahan, and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Iona Hutson of Beaumont, Texas, George Hutson, Paul Hutson, and F. V. Cabiness of Port Arthur, Texas are spending the remainder of the week with relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Roberts announce the arrival of a son on December 5th at the Julia Chester hospital. He has been named James Philip Roberts.

Salt Cells

When poisoning was an art, many nobles in medieval times kept their salt cells locked as a precautionary measure as they were a popular receptacle for the lethal dose.

"THE STORY. Famous writer and comedian Stephen Curt and his wife, Diana, are growing increasingly fond of each other, although their marriage is one of convenience by which Diana, a 23-year-old heiress, is to remain a bride for six months and have lost had not married her. He was 35. His stepmother, Ellen Curt, and Diana's former father, are hoping, however, that they will come to care for each other. Confessions are presented by Evelyn Thorne, beautiful wife of lawyer Richard Thorne, relations former employer of Diana's, and the woman Stephen has always loved, Adela, who, although spoiled sister, who is having an affair with Thorne of which only Diana knows. Diana is in a quandary. She will be reluctant to give up her freedom, but she is a friend. An evening's frantic mad tale tells Diana, in spending the night with Thorne, a wild hunting lodge, Diana, carefully foreclosing a quiet evening alone with Stephen, him she must go on an 'errand'."

TRAPPED BY TRICKERY

CHAPTER XVII

DIANA closed the door behind her, conscious of a savage desire to tear Adela Curt apart. Anything might have happened between her and Stephen this evening—their whole future settled. She climbed into the coupe and slung it angrily into motion. Essie had said it was 15 miles to Thorne's lodge. By the time she persuaded Adela to return it would be very late and Stephen would more than likely have gone to bed.

The snow was falling thick and heavy over the roadway when Diana left the city streets behind and plunged into the open country. It seemed a long time until she came in sight of the lodge, its lights twinkling through the snow. Her headlights picked out the name on the gate. Doubts assailed her.

A moment later she was looking into the amazed eyes of Richard Thorne.

"Well, this is a surprise!" He stepped back as she came into the warmly lighted room and closed the door behind her. "I'm sure I've no idea to what I owe the honor of this visit," Thorne said, his eyes lighting at sight of her clear, fresh beauty. "But now that you're here you must let me take your wraps and give you a drink to warm you."

"Thank you," she said curtly. "I shan't stay. I've come for Adela."

He raised his brows. "Adela? But surely you know she isn't here!"

"I don't believe you! I have information!"

He laughed aloud, mockingly. "So you're being a Girl Scout and rescuing her from the eternal clutches of a worthless scoundrel, eh? Well, my advice to you, my dear, is to let Adela go her own merry way to hell! She's eminently capable of taking care of herself—and also of getting you into lots of trouble!"

Diana was stunned. If Richard Thorne was speaking the truth— "You have her hidden somewhere!" she accused.

He laughed again. "You have the privilege of searching the place."

"Thank you. I will!"

He followed her from room to room, throwing open doors, chuckling softly, enjoying her chagrin. At last they were before the living room fire again.

"Convinced?"

Diana ran a weary hand over her face. "Yes, but I don't understand—" How could Essie have been so mistaken?

He shrugged. "Just some sort of a misunderstanding. But you mustn't go! Now that you've found out I'm not nearly so bad as I've been painted—!"

"I HAVE no further business here," Diana said coldly, but his hand on her arm stayed her. "Wait! Why can't we be friends, Diana? I know we got started off on the wrong foot. But I happen to know that before many months you may need friends."

"If I need friends, I'll probably be able to find them! And you won't be among them!" she retorted.

"Neither will Stephen Curt, nor Phil Bruce, nor my angelic wife—if they should find out you visited me here tonight!"

Her face was hot with shame. He was drawing her roughly into his arms. His face was dark above hers.

"You've always maddened me—defied me—you beautiful, desirable icicle! Do you think I'd bother with Adela or Evelyn—or any of them—if I could have you? Now you've come here of your own free will. What a delight to conquer you—possess your skin!"

A shaft of cold air pierced the room and Richard Thorne reeled her so abruptly that she almost fell. They turned to see Stephen Curt standing in the doorway, his face a white mask, his eyes hard, his mouth grim.

Diana's breath caught, her heart turning over within her, and right then and there all hope vanished. No one—not even Stephen Curt with his understanding—could be expected to forgive or forget the scene just witnessed.

It was Richard Thorne who recovered and spoke first. "Well, Steve, I wasn't expecting you tonight!"

Stephen's lip curled. "Evidently not."

"I suppose it's useless to say I wasn't expecting Diana, either!"

"Quite!" Stephen turned to Diana sharply. "You'll come with me at once!"

DIANA sat stunned. Who had told him she'd be at Richard's lodge? Who, but Adela? It had all been a plot to discredit her in Stephen's eyes!

They drove silently through the night until they reached the portico of the house in Green street. Then Stephen said wearily, "I must remind you again, Diana, that you are still my wife and that I have a certain position to maintain. Also, you've made a bargain which you must live up to. And nothing must appear any different to the outside world!"

Even after tonight, I demand it! Do you understand?"

"Yes, Stephen," she said softly, heart-brokenly, and climbed out of the car and went into the big, quiet house.

Wearily she climbed the stairs to her room, and in the upper hallway met a sleepy-eyed Adela. "Been somewhere, Diana?" Adela asked, smiling maddeningly. "You do choose the nicest nights to run around in!"

Diana felt herself writhe with cold, helpless fury. Adela would not feel so complacently triumphant if she knew how her precious Richard had made love to Diana.

"You wouldn't know where I've been, I suppose?"

Adela shrugged. "Should I?"

"Your brother is satisfied that I am a liar and a cheat. That's what you wanted, wasn't it?"

"I don't know what you're talking about!"

"Don't you?" Flashes of fury darted along Diana's spine. "Then perhaps you'll understand this! I love Stephen Curt and I'm going to fight for him! What do you think of that?"

A sneer crossed Adela's face. "Do you really think you'll win?"

Diana dropped suddenly, her eyes filled with tears, all defiance was gone. "Perhaps not," she admitted, "for you won't hesitate to lie and steal and perjure yourself to get what you want. But," with a fierce intensity, "even you can't keep me from loving him with all my heart!"

Machinery for Farm is Scarce

Agent Urges Farmers to Take Care of Equipment

Leaving farm machinery in the field is a questionable time-saver in the opinion of Oliver L. Adams, county agent. He pointed out that a thin coat of rust soon forms on the unprotected metal parts, which gradually eats its way deeper into the metal. The unprotected wooden parts soon begin to warp and decay.

The parts that begin to rust first are usually those that are not protected with paint. According to Earle K. Rambo of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, these include plow moldboards, shares and landrills, disc on the disc harrow, furrow openers on the corn planter, the spline shaft on the power-driven blower or combine, the knife sections of guard plates on mowers and binders.

A thin film of oil will prevent this rust from forming if the parts are cleaned, dried, and sheltered. The Extension agricultural engineer said that used motor oil will usually be satisfactory.

However, if the implements are not sheltered, then a heavier grease, such as that used in transmissions or differentials or even high pressure grease, should be used on the exposed parts. The heavier greases will not be washed off as quickly by rain or dew as the lighter oils.

All exposed wooden parts should be protected with paint.

When implements with wooden tongues are left out or stored, Rambo suggests that the tongue be propped up near the center in order to relieve the weight at the end.

Rambo said that in view of the restrictions on the manufacture of new farm machinery, it is imperative that farmers lengthen the life of their farm implements. A good slogan is "Clean up! Paint up! Repair!"

Jersey Clubs Offer Bargain

Registered Breeder Available in Hempstead

Livestock breeders that have Jersey animals eligible for registration should take advantage of the special rates being offered by the American Jersey Cattle club according to B. W. Chambers, assistant county agent.

Until January 1, 1942 Jersey's two years of age or over can be registered at the reduced fee of $2 instead of the regular fee of $5. All registration and transfer fees will be higher after January 1, 1942. Farmers who own Jersey's that have not been registered or transferred are invited to call at the county agent's office for the necessary blank forms. The excellent market for dairy products in 1941 and with an even brighter outlook in 1942 for certain dairy products, including cheese, Mr. Chambers said the demand for good Jersey's is likely to increase. This is a real opportunity to materially increase the value of these Jersey's at a reduced cost.

SCHOOL NEWS

Bodew High School Events
BODCAW, Ark. — Bodew High School is expecting the largest number of graduates this year than in a number of years. There are 17 pupils enrolled up to date. Class president is L. P. Goodwin.

The juniors have a total enrollment of 19 pupils. Class rings have been ordered. Class president is Snow Marie Boswell.

Basketball is getting under way now with Senior boys winning 12 out of 14 games and Senior girls winning 9 out of 12 games. The Senior girls have 12 new satin suits and senior boys have ordered 10 new suits and are expecting them in the week.

The Junior teams are winning a large percentage of their games. The four teams will meet Willisville on Waldo's court December 4. Games are scheduled with nearly all teams of the county and many outstanding teams in surrounding counties. Some of the teams are Buckner, Stamps, Garland, Bismarck, Bright Star in Miller county, Bloomberg, Texas, and Reeder.

Death of the 'Often-Sunk' Ark Royal

These two cablephotos from London are the first photos of the actual sinking of the often-sunk British aircraft carrier, the Ark Royal, after being struck by a torpedo as it approached Gibraltar several weeks ago. In the top photo may be seen the sharply listing flight deck on which rest several planes that were unable to take off while below and at right the mortally wounded Ark tilts at a steep angle as a destroyer pulls alongside to rescue crew members. Several men may be seen clustered at the tip of the deck. Only two or three lives were lost in this severe blow to Britain's sea power.

Colgate Students Study Government - First Hand

WASHINGTON — Ten students of the junior class in Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., are having the time of their lives watching government bureaus work here and hearing the wheels of congress grind. They think it's much better than sitting in dull classrooms and studying the facts from dry-as-dust textbooks.

This is the seventh year this has been done and the whole plan is unique with Colgate University. Every year 10 students who stood highest in their freshman and sophomore years are selected from the junior

Porkers Begin Cage Practice

Arkansas Looks Too Tough for Foes in Southwest

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
AP Feature Service
DALLAS — When you mention basketball own here in the Southwest it's spelled A-R-K-A-N-S-A-S.

The tall Razorbacks have won eight championships and tied for another in 17 years and the signs say they'll be up there battling for the crown again come December.

They call Coach Glen Rose "Gloomy Glen" although he's had little to be sad about since Arkansas entered the Southwest Conference in 1924. This time, though, he has a wall coming, but you still can't count the Porkers out of the race.

Noble Robbins, big, steady forward, decided to get married and accept a job on a defense project. That left only four lettermen, but what guys!

Tall Timber

Center Gordon Carpenter is 6-foot-6, forward O'Neal Adams is 6-foot-3 and Guards R. C. Pitts and Clayton Wynne each are 6-foot-4.

The defending champion Razorback who swept through 12 games for a perfect season in the conference and lost to only one college team through out the campaign, lost Forward John Adams, Center John Frieberger and Guard Howard Hickey.

"We'll have a good club but we need ball hustlers like John Adams and Howard Hickey," Rose said in commenting on conference prospects.

"Right now Pitts looks like the player most likely to hawk the ball all the time."

Rose predicted Rice and Southern Methodist would be as strong or stronger than Arkansas.

"The Owls' two or three individual stars and the Mustangs' abundance of fine team-play men will make them tough to beat," he said.

SMU Promising

Southern Methodist, however, can't match Arkansas when it comes to lettermen. The Mustangs had figured on four but Bryan Lloyd, star forward, joined the air corps, leaving Johnny Sebeck and Roy Baeus, guards, and big Hugh Welch, center. S. M. U. has come up, though, with several potential greats from junior colleges and some promising squadmen.

Rice threatens to be plenty trouble some. In fact, Rice might well be labeled the favorite with its wealth of material including towering Bob Kinney, who got all-America mention at center last season, and forward Bill Tom Closs. Both are 6-foot-6. There are seven lettermen in the Rice fold, including the 1941 captain, Placido Gomez, who missed competition last season because of a broken foot.

Texas A. and M. also has seven lettermen. Baylor has five, Texas Christian four and Texas three. Bill Henderson, giant guard, heads the Aggie array which looks quite formidable.

Marriage Helps Students Study

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — (AP)—Married students at the University of Utah say that matrimony has aided their scholastic careers.

They have more time for study, despite the duties of earning a living and keeping house, and they can prepare lessons better in their own homes than in the university library, say the students.

Mrs. Mary Malmstrom Shields, who was married to Jed W. Shields last summer, explains it this way.

"It makes studies more interesting when we can study together."

Mrs. Mary Jane Carter Due, who was married a few months ago to John F. Due, economics instructor, reports she has time not only for her student activities but for attendance at meetings of the faculty women's club.

Most of the students agree that marriage won't work in every case, suggesting that men students usually are too young and too poorly prepared financially to tackle marriage and school at the same time.

Centers of social life for American youth, hub of its pleasures and good times, are the colleges of the country. Here, in addition to education, young men and women gather to enjoy life.

With this in mind, the 20th Century-Fox studio set out to create its newest musical funfest, Mark Hellinger's "Rise and Shine," starting Sunday at the Saenger theater, with a background of college life. Surely, if the townies, Baylor has five, Texas Christian four and Texas three. Bill Henderson, giant guard, heads the Aggie array which looks quite formidable.

Clayton College, a mythical institution of learning in the middle west, was selected as the locale. Clayton, of course, has features which all alumni remember—the class rooms are not prominent, though the fun and good times are. This program was

Still P Pictures Are Important to Movies

By RAY JONES

HOLLYWOOD — The still camera finally has come into its own, not only in newspaper work and the picture magazines, but also in Hollywood.

For years movie companies have annually spent more than $1,000,000 on photographs for publicity. At the same time, they long failed to realize the value of photographs for use in actual production planning.

I am naturally prejudiced, but I predict that portrait sittings will soon rival screen tests as media for the

We, the Women

Time Women Spend on Makeup Could Be Devoted to Serious Affairs—But It WON'T Be

By RUTH MILLETT
The country's cosmetologists — a fancy word for the people who earn their living by contributing to the beauty of women—are upset over the possibility that the government might hog all metals and not leave any for lipstick and rouge containers, combs, curlers, and permanent wave machines. So much so that recently they met to voice their protest.

Before we women get all excited and start writing our congressmen, let's think what life would be like if we didn't have to put enamel on our nails, rouge on our cheeks, lipstick on our lips, mascara on our lashes. If we didn't have to get permanent waves every few months and have our hair-dos re-created every week; if we didn't have to remember to cream our faces at night and rub special oils around our eyes.

If we gave up all our beautifying we'd have an average of an hour or two a day that would be free time, to spend just as we please. And according to the complaints of most of us, we need the hour or two.

We all talk about how busy we are, and we tell each other about all the things we would do if we just had the time, and we excuse ourselves for all that we don't get done by saying that there just aren't enough hours in the day.

Lipsticks Preferred Before Politics

We say we haven't time to mix in politics or to join any community work because our homes and families keep us jumping from morning to night.

Well, if we didn't have to spend so much time on our looks in order to be just as well groomed and glamorous as the next woman, we could have some time for helping to run the affairs of state.

See what wonderful things we could do—if our lipsticks and permanent wave machines were taken away from us? Wouldn't it be wonderful?

Mrs. Jones? You'd rather have your lipstick? Well, just between us girls—so would I.

A visitor in the village was greatly interested in all he saw. In particular he noticed that one of the inhabitants was treated with marked respect by the others, so he remarked: "I observe that you all treat that man with marked deference."

"Yes," was the answer, "he's one of the early settlers."

"Early settlers?" exclaimed the other, "Why he can't be more than 30!"

"That may be true," the other answered, "but he pays his bills promptly on the first of every month."

One beautiful thing about winter is winter clothes have more pockets than you can fill up with stuff.

still camera tests of her in a projected jungle role in "South of Tahiti." When these pictures were studied by Producer-Director George Wagner, he selected her for the part.

Many present-day stars owe a large measure of their success to the efforts of Hollywood photographers. Betty Grable was kept before the public for years, through the medium of stills, at a time when she was playing minor roles. When her big break came, the public was ready to accept her as a top-ranking star.

Myrna Loy's discovery is generally credited to a photographer whose stills brought her to the attention of the Studios. At one point in her career, Carole Lombard was glamorized largely through still pictures. Jean Parker took on a new and colorful personality about a year ago when attractive "leg" and action stills of her began to flood the country.

A single picture of Betty Davis once encouraged her to carry on in her struggle to become a movie actress. When she was first under contract in Hollywood, a succession of bad breaks depressed her and caused her to lose her vital spark. One day I made a candid shot, without her knowledge, of Betty laughing, and next day I showed it to her as an example of what her personality might be. It gave her new confidence and animation.

How to Do It
While it is necessary for motion picture people to take on different personalities in a studio portrait gallery, the average girl who has her picture taken perhaps once a year should try only to be herself in front of the camera.

Dress and make up as if you were going out for an evening, and keep the clothes simple and the makeup at a minimum. If you wear an eccentric hat or dress which happens to be in the current style, your photograph will be out of date as soon as the style changes. After that it will be just a subject of comment on what funny clothes women wore in 1941.

Most men have to be dragged to a photographer, so there is little advice they can be given. All I can say is: Wear a tie, shave and comb your hair. The photographer will do the rest.
